OVER HERE

The First Great Story of the Girl He Left Behind Him

Starts in To morrow's Chicago Tribune

Girls: She's eighteen; beautiful; a sub-deb—a flapper—sparkling with the zest of youth! Along comes the one man. She marries. Two weeks of wedded bliss and then—he enlists. She's joyful—glad to give him up to make the world a decent place to live in. Then come the days of yearning for her dear one—the long, long hours of anxious waiting, of faith, of hope, of prayer. Then—the knowledge that a little stranger is to arrive. Love—sublime, beautiful—brave, loyal sacrifice—sincere, tender devotion—are expressed in a new way in this first great story of an American war bride—"Over Here", by Ethel M. Kelley. It starts in tomorrow's Chicago Sunday Tribune.

"Over Here" is a classic of war-time literature. It sizzles with a new, bold philosophy that epitomizes the courage, will and fidelity of American womanhood. It lays bare the most sacred thoughts and emotions of an American war bride. You'll find a smile and a tear in the same paragraph. Beth says: "Sometimes I get to wondering if I'm grown up enough to love Tommy the way I do without—spontaneous combustion or something. I hadn't got my hair up on top of my head when I knew that Tommy was all there was to it. I knew it in my soul. . . . War is hell, but there is something about doing your part that helps you through it." Don't miss this great message of the war. It starts tomorrow—in the color section of The Chicago Sunday Tribune. Reserve your copy now. Phone your newsdealer.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

"Getting together" may not be an elegant expression, but it is full of suggestive thought, and when the sentiment expressed is adopted the best results are attained. The good Lord who permitted us to come into being equipped us as units and some people are so satisfied with the equipment that they never change their condition, but the discovery was made, a long time ago, that it was not good for man to live alone, and so the first home was established, and ever since that early date units have been absorbed in the building of homes.

But the getting together of two people to build a home, does not always mean a home. The success of the enterprise depends entirely upon whether the units thus united can pull together through the long journey which stretches ahead. If you have ever noticed a span of horses, under the strain of a heavy load on a hard hill, you have discovered that every muscle is tense. There is no lost motion, no shirking of responsibility, but a long, hard pull together until the load goes over the top.

The home that wins, in the lottery of life, and establishes a place, worthy of the name, is the product of the same united effort, and the children which come to bless it are early taught to share the responsibility. There are all kinds of homes, from the ideal, where the units blend in perfect harmony, to the homes of discord and unrest, which are simply used as a convenience, a place to eat and sleep. One reason why the saloon is so popular, and so well patronized, is because there are so many homes of this class. There are too many young husbands who are at a loss for a place to spend their evenings, after the honeymoon has passed.

The home is the foundation of the church, the club, the lodge, and all other organizations which contribute to what is known as society, in community life. The character of every community is determined by the character of its homes. It may be of interest to discuss, for a few minutes, the city where so many of us have long resided, where there are so many contented homes.

No two cities are alike. They have individuality the same as people have, and while the general aspect may be the same, the thing which makes a city is not streets nor buildings, but the people which go in and out and find a dwelling place within its borders. Janesville was founded by old New England stock, conservative and cautious, yet thrifty withal, and so the city has long been noted for conservatism.

Development has been slow, numerically, for the past half century, but exceedingly strong, and so the city enjoys today a reputation second to none, for financial integrity. Business failures are so rare that they are nil, and as a trading center it has no rival in the northwest. The city is proud of its industries. Many of the products have a nation-wide distribution, and some of them have long been staple in the nations of the old world.

Janesville is a city of homes and not of tenements. The voting population is around thirty-three hundred, and of this number twenty-eight hundred are taxpayers, while twenty-six hundred names appear on the real estate tax rolls. That means that a large majority of the people own their own homes, and it also accounts for the atmosphere of contentment which everywhere prevails, unfortunate perhaps, but it might be worse.

Janesville has no millionaires, and its coterie of poverty-stricken people is exceedingly small. The dignity of toil commands universal respect. The aristocracy of labor is the only aristocracy which the city knows anything about, silk stocking criticism to the contrary notwithstanding. The Commercial club, so long maligned and slandered—because of ignorance—is no longer in existence, and with its retirement the last bone of contention is removed, and the field is clear for the new Chamber of Commerce, soon to be launched.

The business clubs of the city have never been a howling success. The old Business Men's club with headquarters on the bridge, thirty years ago, developed a billiard parlor and card room, but died of dry rot, after exploiting Windy Hamilton and a few other smooth promoters. The Elks' club attempted to gather up the wreckage and most of the business men joined, because they had the joining habit, but they soon tired of beefsteak and bridge. The Commercial club will be gratefully remembered—long after its critics have been transplanted—by the boys of the city and county, who will be more intelligent producers than their fathers, because of the knowledge and inspiration furnished by the Commercial club.

What's the matter with Janesville, and why don't the city grow? are questions often asked, and the reply comes back from a contented people, "She's all right." A prominent manufacturer said, many years ago, "Why should I want the city to grow? If it should double in population my home would double in value, and the volume of taxes would materially increase, yet it would be worth no more for a home. Labor troubles would develop and wages would be higher. Better let well enough alone."

This atmosphere of contentment has long enveloped the city. A good place in which to live and an excellent place to die. Father Mahoney said, in a farewell address the other night, that he had enjoyed these contented surroundings for six years, and if he should remain sixty days longer, no power on earth could move him. Easy to assimilate, it hard to get away from.

The address of Father Mahoney will be long remembered by the people who heard it, because he possessed the courage—after paying the city many fine compliments—to point out some of our weaknesses, and the most prominent was our self-satisfied contentment. He maintained that growth and development were products of restless ambition, and he was right.

Contentment, as a dominant virtue, never got a man anywhere, and it never will. It never built a new church or public building, and it never paved a street, or created a public park. There are miles of streets in Janesville rougher than a country road, lined with contented homes. The argument is used that anything that was good enough for the fathers is good enough for the children, and so the spirit of contentment is handed down to the new generation, and adopted with but little complaint.

Contentment is a negative virtue, but ambition belongs to the progressive class, and when combined with good common sense, results are always accomplished. What we need as a city, is less contentment and more ambition.

What is the Chamber of Commerce, just now attracting so much attention, and what does it propose to do? Here are a few things that it is not. It is not a Business Men's club, a Commercial club, or any other kind of a club, neither is it a religious or political organization. It is being promoted by men and women who have the best welfare of the city at heart, and who are attempting to unite every useful channel of work in one common center. The slogan of the campaign is "get together," and it means just that and nothing more.

The platform is so broad that it aims to interest every society and every organization in the city. It will be a clearing house for every effort to advance public welfare, with a hand outstretched to aid. The Chamber of Commerce proposes to interest all classes of people through the Plural Membership Plan which has been adopted within the last eight or nine years in more than one hundred cities that have the most successful commercial organizations. It is an evolution from the old sliding scale plan, which charged one man $500 for his membership and another man $5. Under the Plural Membership Plan every membership has an equal valuation and absolutely equal rights. There are no pooling of votes or proxies allowed.

Under the Plural Membership Plan, corporations, firms, individuals and others are asked to subscribe for a number of memberships and assign these memberships to young men in their employ or to someone in whom they are interested. The full voting power and full membership rights go with these assignments. The extension of the employee's acquaintance, and his development from contact with business men of the city, is of distinct value to the employer. This fact has been recognized by very many of the most successful merchants, manufacturers, bankers, and public service men of America.

It is an old saying that "Nothing succeeds like success." The Chamber of Commerce will succeed if we all get behind it, and this we can well afford to do. The campaign will be, on next Monday morning, when eleven teams will start out to canvass the city. They hope to secure four hundred members before Saturday night. Shall we help? Here are a couple of verses, by a local composer, which express the right spirit.

It's a long way to get four hundred,
It's a long way to go.
It's a long way to get four hundred,
But that's the goal, you know.
Let's all get out and hustle
For we're bound to win the fight.
Make short work of four hundred
For victory's in sight.

Gold in the Arctic
There is believed to be an abundance of gold in the Arctic, but except on the Yukon, and to a lesser extent within Arctic Siberia, it has not yet been exploited to any appreciable extent.

It's a good thing to get together,
It's a good thing to know
When we all can pull together
We'll make a great big show.
Goodbye to all the knockers,
Welcome the BOOSTER CROWD,
And we'll ALL, ALL, ALL get out and hustle
For of Janesville we're proud.

Do You Know?

—that it is costing you approximately $60 per month to maintain your family? Therefore you are worth at least $2 per day to them.

$12,000 Life Insurance money carefully invested will return in interest $720 a year which is exactly what you are paying into your family each year.

As a wage earning machine you are worth $12,000 to take your place.

A $12,000 policy at the age of 25 will cost you $199.32 per year. This is not a loss as approximately 60% is returned to you at any time you may wish to drop the policy.

SIDE LIGHTS on the CIRCUS BUSINESS

By D. W. WATT
Former Manager Burr Robbins
and Later Treasurer of Adam Forepaugh Circuses.

Possibly there are few people who know exactly where they were and what they were doing forty years ago today. I was in Lancaster, Wis., and that was where I made my famous talk to the people from the top of the ticket wagon, the particulars of which I gave you some time ago, and as it was my first year in the business my work did not come easy to me. It was all new to me and I did not know exactly where to take hold and when to let go. This was the year when the wagon show made more money during the season than in any other year in the wagon show business. We went through what was then the "far west," Kansas and Nebraska, and made money as fast as fifty miles or more away from a railroad, making drives that would now seem impossible and giving two exhibitions each day.

There were not only killing drives for the horses, but as we started as soon as the evening performance was over everyone with the show had to sleep where they could. For days in that country, while driving from county seat to county seat, the only sleep I obtained was while the afternoon and evening performances were going on, for after the afternoon performance the landlady of the hotel or the livery man would drive me out about two or three miles so that I could get my bearings for the next town as best I could. The roads at that time were simply trails across the country, and well as the early days, as all the old prairie trails of those days have been wiped out and the modern highways have taken their place, where automobiles can speed 40 miles per hour. I recall one day, Beatrice and many other small, four-corner towns of those days, with not more than a dozen or 20 houses, and today modern cities of several thousands.

It was only a few days ago while visiting with an old-timer in Chicago that he said: "Have you ever listened to more interesting stories than the ones that Buffalo Bill told six years ago at the Showmen's League banquet, that night at the La Salle hotel?" Buffalo Bill certainly made an impression on me when he told us about his first visit to Chicago when he was the guest of Gen. Phil Sheridan, a dashing general of the civil war, and the party that Mrs. Sheridan gave in his honor. I recall that night that Mike Sheridan, a brother and coachman of the famous Phil Sheridan, took Buffalo Bill up to the city, where they got a full dress suit and a pair of white kid gloves for Buffalo Bill to appear in at the party that night, and he was the most uncomfortable man when he was forced to wear them that evening and after they attended the party, and after

Gen. Sheridan's gracious wife had danced the first set with her famous guest and he had been introduced to different people, Buffalo Bill watched his chance and slipped down in the basement where he found Mike Sheridan, whose company was much more to his liking. Mike induced him to take off his dress suit and put on a ready-made suit that he came east in, and the two went up town unknown to anyone in the household. It was long after the guests of the party had departed that Buffalo Bill and Mike returned. When Mrs. Sheridan called him to account the next morning he said: "Why, my dear lady, I never was so uncomfortable in my life as I was in that dress suit, and as I thought I met most of your friends, Mike and I concluded that it would be all right for us to go up and take in the city. Along in 15 years the famous scout hobnobbed with royalty in almost every civilized country, and although he was unpolished in many ways socially, whenever he was guest of honor he said that he managed to stay until the affair was over."

The following letter gives in detail possibly the last contract signed by the famous old pugilist, the late John L. Sullivan:

"John L. Sullivan a week before he died had made arrangements with the Ringlings where he was to receive a large salary to travel with the show. He was to make one last office in the center of the ring at each performance. He wrote the following letter the night before he died to Dr. J. O'Connor, who had written for the contract: 'Now make one last office in the center of the ring at each performance, and to which the public applauded, to yourself and stop drinking. I did it and so can you. Do this for me, old pal. I'll be there and there promised to abstain from the use of intoxicants for all time, and he is a man of his word.'"

The following inquiry appeared in a newspaper a short time ago, and possibly the best authority could be obtained from the sexton of the cemetery in the beautiful city of Delavan, where possibly more famous circus men of years ago are laid at rest than in any other in the country.

By the way, what has become of the circus colony of Delavan, Wis.? Many of the arena celebrities came from that village. Meanwhile Washington court house is still on the map."

There was a meeting of officers-attached to the entertainment committee at Camp Dix, N. J., last week, when they entertained Captain Harry Perry, the well known circus manager and producer who submitted plans for the forthcoming open air circus and fete. One of the features to be offered will be Nervo in his dive of death.

Mrs. Vernon Castle's grandfather was at one time press agent with the old Barnum show. His name was Dave Thomas, previous to holding that position he was a newspaper man in New Haven.

George Black, for years with the Barnum show, is in New York from Detroit, where he has been connected with the government military intelligence department for the state of Michigan, under Edmund Lee of Washington.

cause they might not be able to sleep tonight," Pa stalled, trying to get away. "Indeed he was blushing all over from confusion at the big honor shown him."

"It won't be what they heard that'll keep them from sleeping, it will be what they see," said Tommy, remembering the four pieces of cake Eddie Green had just gotten away with.

"Well," began Pa, "it was in the winter of '06 and Tommy's Ma and I were camping up in the mountains. One day Mrs. Askit discovered there was no meat in the house and as there had been a blizzard that morning, I had to pick up my gun and go for some game. It was quite a dangerous region, being noted for its enormous bears. So I put on my boots—I mean my snowshoes, and trudged through the woods. I tramped about for an hour when I spied a trail of big tracks in the snow. Which I thought were a big rabbit, for I was not in the habit of being frightened. I followed the tracks to a hole in a cave where I poked the butt end of my gun. I had no sooner done that than out popped the biggest bear I had ever seen. I fell back in fright, but soon picked myself up and rushed the bear who saw me coming and beat it into the hole again. He had almost gotten in when I had the presence of mind to grab his tail which I held on to while I shot him with my gun!"

"Aw, he can't make me believe that yarn," said Eddie Green, who had just come in and heard the tittle that followed.

"Tell them all about the time you caught the big bear, Pa," said Tommy, "don't like to tell your friends anything so thrilling, Tommy, be-which made him turn red and white by time the last dart was thrown, glancing at young Eddie.

That night, after the boys had departed, Pa called Tommy into the room and said to him: "I've never heard of you as much as looking at that smart aleck Green boy, I'll whale you to shreds!"

Notes on Red Cross Work

(Arranged by Mrs. Abbie Helms.)

The stock room at the Red Cross work shop is an interesting place, for it is here that supplies are received, garments are cut and sorted into bundles and sent out to the various groups working on hospital garments. An accurate account is kept of material received, of garments on hand, and of the work done. The stock room is a place where the quality of material is maintained. Prices of material have increased so alarmingly during the past few weeks that expenses have gone up very fast. A yard of material now costs 15 cents a yard, and the quality in many cases is not so good. Flannellette, or "cotton," is now sold for 15 cents a yard, and the quality in many cases is not so good. The hospital supplies committee acknowledges with thanks the contributions received from La Prairie and Fulton this week. The "Sammies" club sent in a donation of 25 shirts. This is one of the most faithful and helpful groups working for their brothers overseas. The girls contribute ten cents each at every meeting, whether social or business. Some of the girls have been outside their duties as graduates to make many beautiful garments, besides those done as a part of their school work, have contributed materials for many of them and donated about $120 in cash to Red Cross funds, and also the refreshments sold at the workshop on several occasions.

Refugees. The Red Cross department has been changed its days for open workroom. The garment department is open on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday afternoons from 2 to 4 p.m. and is invited and welcome on those days. On Thursday afternoons the Eastern Star class has the use of the room. On Friday the Red Cross department is open for the vocational school girls, under the direction of Mrs. Rexford and the Community center society of the Presbyterian church, and the high school girls under Mrs. O. E. O'Brien and Mrs. George Thomas, working on the clothing for French refugees.

Surgical Dressings Department: A box was sent from this department last week containing 500 pads, pneumonia jackets and things of like nature, all of which reflected credit upon the skill and efficiency of the work room. Several thousand compresses were also sent to headquarters. Very good work is being done by the group of girls meeting on Wednesday evening. They are still working on the tampons, several thousand of which are ready. About 120 girls were in attendance last Wednesday evening, and they seem to enjoy the work very much. Very good work is being done in the auxiliary. The quota this month being small and being chiefly of the first aid packets, will be filled very easily.

Resume of Moving Picture Programs of Last Week

(By Mrs. Abbie Helms.)

It was an interesting coincidence that the visit of the artillery corps to the city should be accompanied with intensely patriotic pictures at nearly all the local theaters. At the Majestic the scene of the film was laid at the front of the city. It was doubly interesting. At the Beverly the films taken of the Wisconsin troops at Vaco were made by a captain of wealthy means, one Madison who went down to the camp and lived with the men. They have both been called by the draft recently, but Mr. Parrish is on leave to show his pictures for a time through the country.

A really fine picture was shown on Thursday at the Majestic. It was the first in the first draft, and in the story was held by a young fellow who was undecided whether to claim exemption or not. His name was "Tallapoosa," and he was a very human little fellow. Antonio Moreno was also in the picture and made a stalwart soldier.

At the Majestic the patriotic picture was "The Slacker's Heart." In this the hero was also worked upon by pacifist friends and made a tool of the German propaganda. The sweetheart was a little daughter of an officer, would have nothing to do with him when he would not enlist. The scene on the college campus at that time was very interesting. The hero was a very human little fellow. Antonio Moreno was also in the picture and made a stalwart soldier.

At the Beverly a wonderfully fine picture was put on Saturday in "The Cross Bearer." In this story "Monty" Taggart represented a cardinal of Belgium (probably Cardinal Mercier) who helped his people to bear their sufferings. The sacking of a church, an audience with the pope and other incidents were treated with respectful appreciation, and the whole thing was a beautiful presentation of the subject.

Jack Pickford gave a very enjoyable boyhood picture in "Huck and Tom," in which all the quaint village characters and customs were shown. A session of the country school was especially funny.

Charles Ray had for his "Family Skeleton," the hereditary curse of love for liquor, and was going to the bad at a fast rate. He was always expected to by his friends, when his love and anxiety for his sweetheart brought him up with a turn. Then he found that he could control his appetite.

The offering for the first of the week at the Apollo was "Hell Hound of Alaska." In this story of the north W. S. Hart was the strong and virile hero, who always did some splendid work in rescuing the fair heroine, who in this instance was Enid Markey. She does the pitiful child work to perfection. The northern scenery was especially fine, and the Esquimaux dogs, fields of snow, and typical characters of mining towns were shown.

Frank Keenan who is especially strong in powerful roles, was seen in "Rulers of the Road" as a midweek offering. This was a modern story of the great part which railroad men at the present time. The story was a dramatic one of such interest and was given in a telling way. The supporting company was adequate and the scenic effects good.

MOVIES AROUSE SPIRIT OF PEOPLE IN BRAZIL

(By International News.)

Rio De Janeiro, May 15.—Before the war the average Brazilian's ignorance of the American and his attitudes was vast—as vast as the average American's ignorance of the Brazilian and his affairs.

Now, after more than three years of war confusion, the Brazilian has his ideas about the Yankees, and fairly clear ideas they are too. The change was brought about by an utterly unexpected agent—the American motion picture film.

Much has been said and written about the tightening of Pan-American ties. Conventions were held at which representatives of the more than twenty western continent republics banqueted and made speeches. Commercial interests strove to weave tight the American business relations. Diplomats piled plans and policies for the common acceptance of the Monroe doctrine. The press of the two continents clamored for a solidification of American interests. But the man who is "putting it over" is the impresario of the celluloid stage.

For it follows, as day follows night, that Pan-American ties of friendship are possible only when the friends are acquainted with each other. Seeing American implements of progress in action creates a commercial demand for those implements. Living scenes of the American in his home and business make the American character understood and appreciated, and the task of the diplomat becomes easier. Formerly he had to combat the notion that the American soul was stamped with the dollar sign, and that his instincts were purely mercenary. The est aroused by screen pictures of America has caused demand for news and knowledge of the happenings in that country and has brought to the press now a fair proportion of events "made in U. S. A." And the picture plays the thing that did it.

Before the war Brazil was receiving practically all of its motion picture films from Europe, principally from France and Italy. But the film business not being considered among necessities, it was one of the first to suffer. Many of the stars of European filmdom literally became "shoot-in stars," having been called to the trenches, and the feminine portion took to the Red Cross and knitting. Materials used in production of films were needed for munitions. Transportation to South America became difficult. The result was that the European supply of films was almost completely cut off.

There was waiting and woe in Brazilian "movie" fandom. But in the midst of this waiting and woe the American hero, with a sombrero on his head and an unerring six-shooter in his hand, came galloping to the rescue. He galloped right into the warm hearts of the Brazilian, presto, the maiden was saved, the stolen papers restored, the villain vanquished, and Pan-American solidification became as simple as a recipe for apple pie.

Grand Rapids, Wis., May.—The body of Jack Matthews, youngest son of C. R. Matthews of this city, who was drowned in the Wisconsin river last Monday, has not been recovered, although the river has been dragged and dynamited for a considerable distance from the place where it is thought the boy fell into the river.

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON
LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl of seventeen. I am in love with a young man who loves me. He left for Chicago several months ago and about three months later he wrote to me and asked me to come to Chicago, which I refused to do. This of course made him very angry. I told him I was young, and he just kept on writing the same thing over and over. I was very sorry but he must stop writing that or we would have a fall-out. He wrote and said there was no use to correspond if I was not willing to come. I wrote back and told him if he didn't think any more of men than that he should find himself another sweetheart, but at last I heard of course he hasn't.

Do you think it would be improper for me to write him a letter and tell him I am sorry or should I not? I don't know what to do.

CHRISTINE K.
You are too young to be in love, and it will be better to forget this boy as soon as possible. Don't worry about his pining for you, because if he pined to any great extent he would write himself. He may have looked tired sometimes and his appearance was understood by the person who said he was downhearted.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Can you please tell me of something that will make blackheads and pimples disappear?

To cure blackheads make a pint of one ounce of soap liniment and one ounce of ether mix. At night scrub the face thoroughly with hot water, using a complexion or other soft brush. After wiping apply the mixture to each of the spots and let it remain on over night. Wash off in the morning with hot water. Continue until the spots have disappeared. Then twice a week wash the face with this mixture, removing the liquid at once by rinsing with clear water. If there are large pores, wipe over each a little alcohol.

For pimples that appear with blackheads make an ointment of two grams of beta naphthol, twenty grams of sulphur precipitate and twenty grams of potato soap. Rub over the pimples at night. This may be used at the same time as the blackhead mixture.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) If a boy is going with a girl and has a date with her, and she goes with another fellow, is it right for him not to keep the date?

(2) Is it right for him not to go after her when he has a date with her when he hears she was out with another fellow the night before?

(3) Should the girl apologize for going with the other fellow, or is it the boy's place to apologize for not coming?

THANK YOU.
Unless the girl is engaged, she should suggest going anywhere that would cost money. A walk would be all right, or a call at the home of a friend.

EVERYDAY ETIQUETTE

11. When parting from another person it is generally considered better to say "Good-bye" rather than "Good-day," "Good-afternoon," or "Good-evening." One may properly say "Good-night" at the end of an evening, "Good-morning" when greeting anyone before noon, while after that hour "Good-afternoon" and "Good-evening" are the accepted salutations.

(Miss Riley will answer in this column all questions on matters of etiquette addressed to her in care of this paper. If a personal answer is desired enclose a three-cent stamp.)

Reader, you cannot see that you have done wrong in making the acquaintance of the lieutenant in your brother's regiment. You might write him a note inviting him to attend the minstrel show coming to your home.

However, as he is merely a friend, you should arrange to have your father or brother go with you to the station to meet him and take him to a hotel where he will be comfortable. During his visit you should invite him to meals as often as convenient.

I know of no other way to announce your engagement than of writing short personal notes to one's friends. Unless, of course, the announcement is made by very unusual and not in good taste to send the girl's card tied with white ribbon to that of her fiancé. It is not necessary, however, to write more than personal friends. The news will spread quickly enough.

breakfast? I am 64 inches tall, 37 years old, and weigh 140 lbs. I am a little fat, but I am a good cook and a good housewife. I am a good mother and a good friend. I am a good worker and a good doer. I am a good person and a good soul.

ANSWER—Yes, take about a dozen rolls before breakfast and another dozen at bedtime.

Some time ago you gave a formula for a skin ointment for dandruff which my sister has used with great satisfaction. But you know how it is with a skin ointment. If you suggest a lotion of some sort that can be rubbed on and rubbed in every morning without taking so much time, it is a good idea. I am a good cook and a good housewife. I am a good mother and a good friend. I am a good worker and a good doer. I am a good person and a good soul.

"Out There" is the name of the book in which the Allied Armies, which has been put into circulation at the local library this week, according to the librarian. In his book he tells more of his experiences and much more interestingly than related when visiting Janesville.

Another of the latest war books at the library is the thrilling story of the daring aviator, who relates in gripping words his experiences while escaping from a German prison. "Outwitting the Hun" is the name of the book in which he tells how he lived in Belgium, where he mingled with German soldiers, and finally how he escaped into Holland in spite of the charged wire barricade.

Many other books dealing with the war are now in circulation, and each lead to the front line trench; the burden of the war, the aspiration of Germany, the hope of the Allied, and opens to those "over here" a panorama of the conditions confronting the allied countries. "A Note Book of an Intelligence Officer" is the title of one of the new books, and is one which will set a "regier feller" into day dreaming when he ought to be chipping merrily wood, although the book was not written for the youngsters. The 1918 "Who's Who" is also on file.

Following is a list of the other new books in circulation:

"Yankee in the Trenches," Holmes; "Notebook of an Intelligence Officer," Wood; "United States and Germany," Chas. Idaho Miner in the Italian Army is a Modern Samson

"All I want you to do is to take the tailpiece of that cannon and keep the portal from caving into us all clear."

Perhaps the most spectacular cinema film ever produced was that one in which the incomparable Italian artist, Maciste, fights—more or less single handed—a battalion or two of Austrian Kaiser Jaeger among the eternal snows of the high Alps.

And perhaps the one most spectacular scene of this whole great film is that in which the hero, in order to bring about the discomfiture of his enemies, carries up a slippery mountain path on his shoulder a gun which, if it had been the real thing—would have weighed 100 or 200 pounds. But there is at present wearing the eagle feather of the matchless Alpinist a man—formerly a miner in the Idaho lead fields—who has, moreover, performed feats of strength and prowess in actual warfare quite equal to those enacted by his famous cinema prototype for the camera.

The man, whose name it is forbidden to give, thus tells his story:

"It was over in the Dolomites last winter that I had a rather ticklish stunt set for me. We were digging a tunnel through a couple of hundred meters of snowside on one of the main roads, when the tenente who was bossing the job noticed that the snow was starting to settle from the sun, and that the portal was almost ready to collapse.

"I'm going in to bring the men out," he said to me. "It won't start to fall inside. All I want you to do is to take the tailpiece of that cannon and keep the portal from caving into us all clear." The roof of the tunnel had settled so that I could just hold the tailpiece hard against it by standing

CHANDLER SIX $1595

Unusual Economy Without Sacrifice

THE Chandler Six has always been famous for its economy of operation—economy without the sacrifice of reserve power, without the sacrifice of roadability, without the sacrifice of beauty of design.

Thousands of Chandler owners all over America tell of gasoline mileage of fifteen to seventeen miles per gallon.

Tire mileage of seven thousand to nine thousand miles per set of tires is commonplace among Chandler owners.

Chandler owners and Chandler dealers say that the service upkeep of the Chandler car is much less than that of other good cars which they have owned or sold.

In the ownership of a Chandler Six you will possess a really great automobile—great not merely from the standpoint of economy of operation and maintenance, but, even more important, from the standpoint of mechanical excellence and daily performance.

The Chandler motor, designed and built in our own factory, distinguishes the Chandler chassis, marked throughout by its simplicity and its sturdiness. The life, pick-up, get-away and endurance of this motor will astonish you quite as much as it pleases you.

NO VALVE GRINDING

NO CARBON TROUBLE

MOLINE KNIGHT

After 60,000 miles of the smoothest, easiest riding you've ever known, your motor will be better than a new one!

Easiest riding car you've ever been in! We guarantee to prove it. People who have ridden in automobiles for years—motorists who drive the most costly cars on the market—without one single exception say, after a ride in the Moline-Knight, that they have "never seen it beat."

The double compounded cross-wise rear spring, unshackled on the left is the reason.

When you have seen how it works—how it makes the car ride—how it adds to tire mileage—you will understand our guarantee. Shock absorbers are put to shame in comparison!

Most quiet, most vibrationless, longest-lived motor ever made! Steamlike flexibility! Any speeds, 2 to 50 miles per hour, without dropping from high gear—without jerk—without noise—without vibration.

Carbon benefits it! In other motors carbon causes four-fifths of all carburetor and ignition troubles and necessitates frequent, expensive valve-adjusting and valve grinding.

At 60,000 miles it performs better—costs less to run—than during even its first 5,000 miles! Nowhere will you find a motor to equal the Moline-Knight.

We guarantee that no other car will satisfy you or your family after your first 1,000 miles—or after 10,000 miles to 100,000 miles—in a Moline-Knight.

COMPLETE PLANS FOR OPENING CHAMBER OF COMMERCE CAMPAIGN

Intensive Membership Drive will Open Monday Morning—James T. Begg Will Speak at Luncheon.

All is now in readiness for the big Chamber of Commerce membership campaign which is to open Monday morning at nine o'clock. Final instructions were given to the workers yesterday morning at the noon-day luncheon which was attended by practically all of the team members. Mr. J. T. Begg, chairman of the campaign advisory committee, presided at the meeting and Col. Simmons of the American City Bureau was the principal speaker.

WAY TAKE CHANCES INSTEAD OF TAKING THE BRIDGE?

Over one hundred business and professional men have pledged themselves to give two hours of their time each day next week to the work of soliciting memberships, which is emphasized by the fact that the need for a strong Chamber of Commerce is so keenly realized by a large number.

The workers will be divided into teams of four men each, the teams to be under the leadership of the following captains: V. H. Taylor, Edward Buss, P. C. Grant, C. A. Ensign, A. A. Pinks, Howard R. Green, Henry M. Clark, Albert J. Hubbel, Chas. Skidd, P. H. Korst and J. G. Brines.

The teams will assemble at Campaign Headquarters at No. 5 North Main street at nine o'clock Monday morning, at which time their districts will be determined by lot. Each team will work from nine to eleven o'clock each morning and the memberships secured each morning will be reported at a noon-day luncheon at 12:15 o'clock at which all workers will assemble.

The luncheons on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday will be held at the Myers Hotel and the Thursday and Friday luncheons at the Grand. Good speakers will be heard at each of the luncheons and campaign songs will be sung by the workers under the direction of song-leaders C. R. Beasmore and Robert Dalley.

P. H. Korst, one of the team captains, is announced as the presiding officer for the Monday luncheon, and the speaker of the day will be James T. Begg, of Sandusky, Ohio, who is a member of the American City Bureau staff and one of the most convincing speakers.

It is stated at headquarters that any business or professional men who wish may attend the luncheons, and that they are not limited to team members. There will be no solicitation of memberships at any of the luncheons, so that no one who attends will be embarrassed by being asked to join. The luncheons are purely inspirational and educational.

Col. Chas. A. Simmons, director of the campaign, expressed himself today as being confident that the membership drive would be highly successful. "We have assembled an unusually large and strong list of team workers," said Col. Simmons, "and I believe they are showing I believe we will have no great difficulty in securing the 400 members necessary to the building of the kind of Chamber of Commerce that Janesville should have. Every team worker I have met has impressed me as capable of showing the kind of team work necessary in a campaign of this kind—the kind of team work that Kipling had in mind when he wrote:

"It ain't the individuals,
Nor the funds that they can pay,
But the close cooperation
That makes them win the day."

"It ain't the guns nor armament,
Nor the army as a whole,
But the excellent teamwork
Of every bloomin' soul."

IMPORTANT SESSION OF SILO MEN IN CHICAGO

Chicago, May 18.—The most important meeting in the history of the National Silo Association opened here today.

Food conservation and stock production are the salient features to be entertained and acted on.

The change in the original date of the meeting of June 5 to today is due to a national movement to promote the silo as a great food conservation means. The farming interests are looking to the silo to save a vast amount of forage, thereby maintaining and increasing the livestock production.

The added importance of the silo is aptly expressed in a recent article sent out by the National City Bank of New York City, which said in part: "There ought to be a million silos built and filled this year before the growing season is over. They will not only help win the war, but will make living cheaper after the war. Several states are now promoting the silo through the state council of defense. Recently there have been several large meetings held looking toward the promotion of the silo, one in Chicago and Indianapolis, when Gov. James F. Goodrich presided.

Guest

Over Here reflects the love and loyalty of the folks at home. Mr. Guest has put into his verse the kindly thoughts and sentiments we all feel and yearn to express, with an appealing tenderness and sincerity that touches the heart.

Over Here is a book for the mothers and fathers of the boys "over there"—for the girls whose sweethearts are in khaki—for loyal-hearted men and women, whose hearts are with America.

"These tributes to the flag, to our soldiers, this strong faith in the destinies of our nation, at once thrill and inspire; they touch the heart and moisten the eye, and will find response in thousands of hearts that need encouragement and consolation."—Detroit Free Press.

"These are songs of home as inspiring as shouts of victory afar. They faithfully reflect the loyal, devoted spirit of the time."—Philadelphia North American.

Your heart will be stirred, your spirit renewed by reading these war-time poems that so finely exemplify the spirit that should prevail in our hearts over here."—Detroit Saturday Night.

Edgar A. Guest is a daily contributor to the Gazette of a heart poem and it is fortunate we are able to offer this book to our readers at the special price of 89c. Clip 2 of the announcements on different dates and bring or send to the office with 89c.

Coming from this high source, we must be led to believe that there is something in the prediction, but then, one cannot bank strongly on anything these days.

One thing we would like to see. We would like to see all the armies sold off for about twenty minutes. And then let Col. Roosevelt's four sons have it out with the Kaiser's six sons. There would be six vacant places. At the old dinner table in Potsdam.

But tonight. Personally, we believe any two of the Colonel's sons could do the trick if they had to.

Then into this quiet sector slipped the old Irish 69th regiment. How long was it a "quiet" sector?

About fifteen minutes—just long enough for the boys to get rid of their blanket rolls and find a place to shoot from.

The best way to wake up a "quiet" sector is to put an Irish regiment into it. If there isn't any fight, they start one.

It is an admirable idea to wrap good tools, such as drills, wrenches, etc., in oiled cloths before stowing them away in the tool compartment. The oiled cloths prevent the implements from becoming rusty, which is quite likely to happen in the course of a strenuous season's running.

SENATOR LEE OVERMAN.

The empowering bill, fathered by United States Senator Lee Slater Overman, at the request of President Wilson, has brought its author into the limelight. The sweeping measure has been bitterly assailed by Borah of Idaho, Knox of Pennsylvania and others who declare the measure gives too much authority to the president in reorganizing government departments and agencies for the war period.

Overman is a North Carolina Democrat. Born in 1854, he received a collegiate education, turned to school teaching and was private secretary to two governors before entering the legislature in 1908.

He was president of a railroad for a year, but the lure of politics drew him into the senatorial campaign against J. C. Pritchard, Republican, in 1905. A combination of Republicans and Democrats defeated the German and Democratic nominee, and Pritchard won.

But Overman went into the campaign again and succeeded Pritchard in 1907 and 1908. He is the first United States Senator from his state chosen by a direct vote of the people. Now he is chairman of the senate rules committee.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

BATTERS MAKING HARD DRIVE WITH CUDGELS

[BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.]

New York, May 18.—Batting has been unusually heavy in both major leagues so far this season.

The batters have been in their glory for heavy cannonading. In fact, the managers to change batters many times, as the low scores show, and the races for the batting championships are on in full tilt and high contest.

Though the weather met up with by most teams in the south this year was reported fair, it has developed that practically all of the pitchers had a tough time of it getting in shape to start the season and during the first three weeks of the campaign, which is now a month old, the hurlers took their bumps.

As usual, there have been a number of brilliant pitching performances, but the records made so far this year cannot compare with those of 1917, when several pitchers broke into the no-hit hall of fame before the middle of May.

Eddie Roush and Ty Cobb, the batting champions of the big show, are finding the opposition livelier this year than they did last season, for the hard hitters are going at a faster clip and there is a good chance that the cities in both leagues may change hands.

The line-up of the local team is as follows: Crowley, c; Beck, p; Fuller, 1b; Marko, 2b; McGreevy, 3b; Brummond, 3b; Graf, 4b; Babcock, cf; Grasslin, rf.

The American League has lost more than seventy players in the draft and through enlistment and expects to lose more, but it does not approve of players trying to evade military service," said Johnson. "Some of them apparently have been badly advised."

MIKE DONLIN SOON TO GO TO FRANCE

[BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.]

Mike Donlin, for years an idol of New York Giant fans, is to go to France as a baseball instructor for the soldiers. Old "Turkey" Mike, a slugger extraordinary and one of the most picturesque figures of the national pastime has ever produced, is to be appointed to that position by the committee on training camp activities, and expects to go overseas in the near future.

Mike Donlin.

Baseball on the Pacific coast, which has gone through a variety of "wars" in the past fifteen years, is now feeling the menace of a new kind of "outlawry," and the situation is such that some sort of drastic action may be required if organized baseball is to be maintained to its full purpose.

Earlier in the season the club owners had to face the drain caused by the tactics of various army and navy units which came out with open bids to players to enlist with promises of special inducements, the purpose being to build up strong ball clubs as part of service athletic activities.

That period passed and now the various shipyards along the coast have entered into a similar movement. Every ball player who is eligible for service in the national army but who does not care to shoulder a gun is angling for a job in the shipyards these days. By taking such employment he thinks he is assured deferred draft classification, besides pay as an expert workman, whether he ever had any experience in the work supposed to be done or not.

The situation has become such that there is likely to be something doing between organized baseball and the shipyards pretty soon.

A ball player in the front line trenches is worth more to America's cause than a dozen in the shipyards.

Ford Clothes For You Men

W. F. BROWN'S

Conduct a Ready-to-Wear Store of Distinction at 35 South Main Street

Located at 35 South Main Street is an exclusive specialty shop for women and misses which is a credit to the city of Janesville.

Here you will find displayed at all times a large collection of the most beautiful and most exclusive styles in women's and Misses' outer apparel and at prices so reasonable that you will find their prices are no higher than you would expect to pay for the ordinary kind of garments.

Although Mr. and Mrs. Brown are young people, they have had a great deal of experience in the ready-to-wear field as they conducted a very successful ready-to-wear business in the city of Rockford for the past eight years, and previous to that they were actively engaged in the ready-to-wear business with the firm of D. J. Stewart & Co., and Mr. Brown was buyer for four years in the ready-to-wear department of the Ashton Dry Goods Co., of Rockford, Ill.

During the past eight years they have conducted with the greatest success one of the largest and most exclusive ready-to-wear stores in the city of Rockford. This store was started eight years ago in a very small way as they had at that time only one floor and a small stock of merchandise. At the time they sold out their business last August in Rockford, they occupied three complete floors and basement, which was devoted exclusively to the sale of women's and Misses' outer apparel, and their business was considered the largest of its kind in that city.

The "Browns" have always had an enviable reputation for handling high grade merchandise, giving their customers exceptional big values and also giving them a courteous conscientious service. Their slogan was "Once a customer, always one." These factors have played an important part in building up of the good name and reputation of W. F. Brown's, and the result is that they have today thousands of loyal friends and customers who are glad to testify to the merits of "Brown's" garments.

Their store at Rockford was sold last August to a Chicago firm who are using the name of W. F. Brown Co. for the present time for trade purposes only, although Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Brown have no connection whatever with the Rockford store now.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown have always enjoyed a large patronage from Beloit, Janesville and a great many other Wisconsin cities, and for this reason they decided to locate in Janesville as they were not strangers to the Janesville ladies, which fact has been proven by the reception given them since they located in this city as they have enjoyed a wonderful business which is increasing each day.

They have taken a long lease on the store at 35 S. Main St., owned by D. Ryan, and they are continually making extensive improvements and adding still larger stocks, and eventually expect to have one of the largest and most exclusive specialty shops in this part of the state.
